Seven cases of mortality have occured within the last twelve months.

From the appropriation of the last Legislature and during the present year, your Commissioners have been enabled to erect one of the wings contemplated in the original plan of the building the dimensions of which are 62 foot long by 22 feet wide, and three story high; which affords 12commodious cells well adapted to the convenience and comfort of the maniacs who require separate apartments for their own quiet and repose, as well as to prevent an annoyance to those around them. These apartments will be comfortably warmed without placing fire within their reach. Your Commissioners are, as heretefore, deeply impressed with the importance and necessity of erecting another and similar wing to that which has been recently erected, which would render the establishment sufficently capacious to accommodate all persons who might be sent there. Bodley having recovered county of Mason, from Gaither, by a decree of the Circuit court of that county, Commissioners re turned their report, shewing the value of the buildngs; of the clearing and fencing done upon the land; of the land, itself in a state of nature; and of Bodley, by his counsel took exceptions to the report, and moved the court to quash it, upon four different ground, in substance as follows: cause (as he alledged. Gaither never had such title to the land as would authorize him to claim nay for improvements under the occupant laws. 2. That those laws were in violation of the Constitution of the United States, and of the compact with Virgin ia. 3. That the Commissioners had not reported under what law their report was made. 4. That the report was defective in not shewing the balance

The Mason circuit court, the Hon Adam Beatty ole Judge, at August term 1823, overruled the ex ceptions to the report, and rendered judgment in favor of Gaither, for $603.90 the balance due by

From that judgment Bodley appealed to this court. The cause was heard at October term, 1824 Wm T Barry for Bodley, J J Crittenden for Gai-and appearing in the bill of excentions.' BARRY, for app't. BRIEF. 'Over and above the minor questions stated by exceptions to the report of the Commissioners the case presents two questions.

1st Whether the defendant Gaither produces such a title as would bring him within the provisions of the occupying claimant laws of Kentucky. 2d That the laws of Kentucky enacted by Legislature of Kentucky, upon the subject of the occupying claimants are contrary to the compact between Virginia and Kentucky, and therefore contrary to the constitution of the United States

CRITTENDEN, for Gaither. At the present Term, on the lith inst, Judge Owsley delivered the opinion of the court as folows.

BODLEY vs. GAITHER.

This is as appeal from a Jydgment rendered by the court below, in favour of Gaither, upon a re port made out by commissioners, under the act o. the Legislature of this State that passed in 1812, concerning occupying claimants.

Two questions were made in argument by the onnsel of Bodlev.

1st It was contended, that the title produced by Gaither is not such as to bring his case within the 2nd That the laws enacted by the Legislature of Kentucky upon the subject of occupying claimants are confrary to the compact between Virginia and Kentucky and therefore contrary to the constituion of the United states and void.

With respect to the first question, it is perfectly clear that the title produced by Gaither brings the ase within the provisions of the law of this State concerning occupying claimants. The title of each party to this contest is derived under the land law f Virginia, and the title of both parties have their foundation of public record. To occupants hav-ing such a title, the provisions of the act of 1812 imphatically apply.

The second question has long since been decided by this court. Shortly after the passage of the act f 1812, its validity was drawn in question, and fihally decided in the case of Fowler versus Halbert, pring term 1845, 4 Bibb 52. The provisions of he act of 1812 were, in that case, held not to be inonsistant either with the compact between Virmia and Kentucky, or the constitution of this State, or the United States. That decision has cretofore been considered by this court as having out at rest all questions as to the validity of the ci. In the many cases which have since arisen infer the act, and which have undergone the adjulication of this court, there has not escaped the lightest indication of a change of opinion. outrary, the validity of the act has been uniformly ustained, and its provisions enforced.

Aware that such had been the invariable decis on of this court, it was not attempted by the coun el of Rodley to controvert the validity of the act arguments drawn from the constitution of the nited states, or the compact between the states f Virginia and Kentucky; but we were referred to e case of Green versus Biddle, and wheather, in ich eine the Supreme court of the United States adjudged the act of 18:2 to be contrary to the compact between the states of Virginia and Kenacky, and in violation of the constitution of the United states; and it was contended, that the decison in that case was binding upon this court in the resent case. That we should consider ourselves ound by the decisions of the supreme court in the United States, settling a construction of the contitution, or laws of the United States, in cases where the Supreme court possesses revising jurisiction over the decisions of this court, we shall et pretend to controvert. But whether or not the resent case, is one of that description, is unimportait is the present contest. Freene vs Biddle was decided by three only of the even Jueges that compese the Supreme court o ne United States; and being the opinion of less han a majority of the Judges cannot be considered es having settled any constitutional principle.-It would not, we apprehend, even in that court be onsidered conclusive in any subsequent case that ay be brought before it. Without, therefore, intending to admit the binding force of that decision upon this court, if it had been the unanimous opinon of all the Judges composing the Supreme court, out leaving the effect of such a decision, if hereafer made, for future consideration, we have no hestation, under the circumstances attending the case of Green vs Biddle, in not yielding to its au-

KENTUCKY-STATE AND FEDERAL AU THORITIES.

In this paper we have made several lengthy ex-racts from the message of the Governor of Kenncky to the legislature which convened at Frankort on the seventh of this month. We have pub ished these parts of Gov Desha's message, that on readers may be furpished with a correct view of the olitical dissentions which, for several years have distracted the councils & agitated the minds of the citizens of Kentucky. The present, it will be seen is likely to prove a very important legislative ses-On the concitiatory measures which may be dopted by that body, the peace and prosperity of he state for years to come would seem to depend. Unless some compromise of the difficulties arising out of the old and new court questions should take place, the most unhappy issue is to be feared.

It is to be regretted that the dissentions now desroying the peace of a sister state, all originated rom decisions of the courts of the United States, opposed to, and invalidating the statutes of Kentacky. We do not pretend to be competent to mestion the correctness of these decisions; but the resent difficulties in Kentucky cannot too strongly mpress on the minds of our state and federallegisators the impolicy and danger of encroachments. The line at which the constitutional power of the eneral government ends and state state soverignty begins, cannot perhaps be so accurately de-ned as in all cases to be obvious and indisputable. To insure perfect harmony the ground of collison should be carefully avoided and whenever exsting laws necessarily lead to conflicting decisons of the federal and state judiciary, no senti-nents of state pride or national supremacy ough o prevent aspeedy correction of the error by a re-beal or amendment laws, as the case may require. Our own citizens in common with the people of Kentucky, at this time are deeply interested in the ecision of the federal courts in relation to their ower of prescribing the mode in which their adgments are to be enforced on execution. If any et of Congress vests our federal judiciary with un! defined powers so important to the citizens, it de Bates. TO THE LEGISLATURE OF KENTUCKY. It has been said that it often happens, that a noker on, perceives errors in the moves of superiour players; this remark may be applied perhaps the fiscal concerns of the commonwealth.

and appointing four agents to attend to the renewquired what is the object of this measure and am informed, that it is to diminish the expences of the give. Which is the greatest evil to have a judicontinuance altogether. I have reflected on this subject, and fear that like the boy in the fable, you that a Bank is so great an evil that you must give are killing the goese to get all the eggs at once. Will you not by this change, lose vastly more in the collection, than you will save in wages? You change consequently augment litigation to save bundred more in the character of directors who receive no recompense; yet with all these, you have some bad debts; how many more will you have now have the Bank; it is to be sure too much extenif you reduce your number of agents to five? One | ded; but you can circumscribe it, or draw into narthe state must have a better opportunity of knowing the standing of the debtors than five can. At then you will not be obliged to starve off your judgeach succeeding meeting of the directory, as the notes are offered for renewal an enquiry is made in exemplify the anecdote of the to the situation of the debtors, and if any unfavourable change has taken place in their concumstances, the board requires additional security and in this way fortifies the debts. The number and dispersed location of the directors enables them to obtain early information of the death, removal or insolvency of any of the debtors, and steps are in mediately taken to indemnify the bank. Could pleasure of getting right again. this he so well done by five agents, that is one agent for fifteen counties? Is it not practically impossible? It is answered that the experiment has been tried in the case of the Bank of Kentuc ky. What is the fact with respect to that Bank? more than from thirty to fifty notes; if so. doubtless an agent does not experience much difficulty in watching over this number. But how many are there in the branch of the bank of the commonwealth at Lexington? I have been told that the report made to you a few weeks since shows a list of nine bundred, on these nine bundred notes there must be two thousand distinct names; then an agent hould have a familiar knowledge of the condition of these two thousand persons; and that is not all he must also be equally well acquainted with the counted; and the dealers in stock to be driven to four or six thousand debtors in two or three other the South are enabled to give better prices to the bank districts under his care. The situation of the two institutions is dissimilar, and I fear the step terms. you are about to take is fraught with mischief. The bank is a project of the relief party; so far it has prospered; it has made for the state $400,000 clear f expence and it has et present few had debts. If by any error committed by you, losses should be sustained you will have to bear the blame and odi-

It is doubtless proper to curtail the expences of the institution if practicable; and probably in some of the branches where there is little business done: that is where there are no deposits, the clerks might be discharged and progressively such of the ranches as it may be proper to discontinue should be called in; but this must be done gradually; such great changes as that contemplated are dangerous

I will now advert to the second object in view; that is your intention to collect in all the debts due the bank and to discontinue it. What is your motive for desiring to discontinue the operation of Banking! From the report just laid before you by the cashier of the Bank, it appears that the debts due to the institution amount to $2400,000 ann thosedue from it to $1,400,000 leaving a ballance of something like one million in favour of the Then so soon as the calls and discounts, withdraw from circulation $1,400,000 of notes there will remain due by individuals to the bank $1,000,000 the accruing interest of which must be paid in specie, as there will be no other medium to make payment in. How long will it take to accomplish this? The notes of the bank are called in at the rate of twelve per cent on the original amount loaned which is about thwety four per ceut per annum on the sum now actually due besides the current interest; this has hitherto been equal to and will continue to amount to $450,000 per year; add to this what will be paid in volunterily and the anount which will be obtained from the Bank of Kentucky as dividends, then how will the case stand! In two years the calls and discount must amount to $900,000 and the voluntary payments and receipts from the Bank of Kentucky to 4 or 500,000 dollars more; so that in two years all the commonwealth notes will have disappeared from cir culation, and it will be a specie paying bank with capitol of upwards of a million of dollars. In that case would you go on and collect in this million also in gold and solver and deposit it in the treasury and close the business? What would you do with the money if you had it? Would you again go into partnership with the shareholders of the bunk of Kentucky? I would suppose that you are tired of all partnerships between the state and individuals. What then; would you lay the money all out as fast as you get it in public works, roads, canals &c? Or would it be better only to lay out the annual inter-If so, then the next inquiry would be in what fund would your invest it so as to be secure and at yourown? If so, you now have the very thing you want, you have a bank of your own. But you say it is too much dispersed in its ramifications; then in that case gradually withdraw its superfinous braches and deposit your capitol in those commercial plamands the speedy and serious consideration of our ces where it can be actively and profitably employ. ed; and where you can have the advantage of an xtensive deposit. From sented to by Mr. Spaulding and advocated by Mr coart produnced judgment thereon for the balance regard to the execution laws of the state. The this scarce alone a profit can be made at Lexington appearing a favour of Gaither, and to reverse that sudden and unexpected change of the course of sufficent to pay all the expences of the bank there, judgement the cause is presecuted in this court by proceedings on this subject, has very jestly attract. And if receiving the deposit is productive of profit

Banking institutions are useful if rightly conducwas to operate. That practice it was generally believed was founded on the express provisions of negotiations by discounting bills and notes founded on merchantile contracts. Where there are ces a change of this salutary practice has been monied institutions to do this, usury is superceded, deemed necessary, we are left to conjecture. Cer commerce rendered more active, and both the tra-tainly if the power be unquestionable no rule of der and agriculture ist, are benefited. A million of der and agricultureist, are benefited. A million of capital could be used in four or five of the principal commercial places in the state, in this way to advantage. The Commonwealth has this money and it is more fit that the State should be the banker than private individuals or a private corporation. Chartered corporations are strongly vempt-The paramount control over the soil and the pow- ed to commit traud, the members are not individually liable for the debts of the corporation in case f failure. This circumstance Lolds out strong inindisputable feature of sovereignty, and any in- ducements to dishonesty. I wo examples if no more, fringement of this long established principle will are furnished in the Western country, one in Kentucky and another in Missouri. Whilst the State Rules similar to those adopted in Kentucky, will is the only Stock holder, there can be no danger probably be established for the regulation of pro- of insolvency, swindling, or loss; the Bank would cess issued from the federal cours in Ohio, at their enjoy public confidence, and afford great facilities next term. But we hope our approaching state to the citizens in monied negotiations offering them legislature will take the earliest opportunity of presenting this subject to Congress for their consider opportunities of obtaining loans without going to Shavers and usurers.

Then suppose you arrange the funds of the State so as to have about five Banks, the expence would be perhaps $15,000, yearly and the annual nett profit at least 60,000 Dollars; that is estimating the capital at one million. I here suppose the nett profit to be six per cent, besides the expences, which could be very easily paid by the profit on the deposit; could you not do much good with sixty with some propriety to your measures in relation to thousand dollars a year? It is, if I am not mistaken equal to half-the regular expenditure of the gov-I perceive from the papers, that you have a meas- ernment. In the Sea port towns the Shippersellshis (argo on a credit of one, two, three or four months for notes I am informed that at Lexington there are not for bills; it is necessary to set sail on his return voyage, and it becomes absolutely requisite that he should cash his bills, this must be done by a Banking . establishment or private money Brokers. In like manner commercial operations occur in this country the Shipper of produce draws; bills on the eastern cities which he must have dis-

> This necessity for discounting bills or changing of money is not of modern invention, it was produced by the necessities of society early in the history f commerce, In Rome, bankerwere officers of the government, notaries acted as brokers, commise sion merchants, and money changers. Afterwards the free cities of Italy finding the necessity of institutions of this kind, it is said, first established banks as a place for a common deposit of money, and to negotiate bills of exchange. About the year 1157, the bank of Venice was established, in which all commercial negotiations were required by law to be transacted, and it proved a source of great usefulness to the state and its citizens. In like manner the Genoese republic instituted a bank on the public revenue, which was found highly beneicial. At subsequent periods, the banks of Amsterdam, Rotterdam, and Hamburgh, were, in like manner, founded on the funds of the public, and with equal utility, and shortly preceding the commencement of the eighteenth century, the Bank of England was incorporated, and this grand monied ngine has contributed greatly to the power and plendour of Great Britain. Political economists in America have now become convinced that banks are indispensable to fiscal transactions, and after making the experiment of conducting the concerns of government without the aid of such an institution, they deemed it necessary to grant a second charter creating the present existing bank of the United States. Now I will not venture to say I like the plan of this institution entirely; because I am not satisfied with the policy of the government going into partnership with individuals; but I entertain no doubt of the utility of an establishment of the kind; and I am equally well satisfied that a similar institution should be erected in this state by the Commonwealth. Therefore, in whatever point of view I have been able to consider this subject. I cannot perceive the policy of destroying

An article in this days paper signed "One of the people," is not only worthy the notice of the Legislature, but of every citizen in the state;-If the bank is capable of producing a yearly revenue to the state of $60,000 under its present regulations, why change those regulations for others untried, and which may materially affect the nett proceeds?
